Valeria Espinosa (b. 1980s)

Valeria Espinosa obtained her PhD in statistics from Harvard University in 2013, after which she worked as a statistician at Google. She is currently a staff data scientist at Waymo, an autonomous driving technology company. Espinosa is interested in causal inference, design and analysis of experiments, and Bayesian modeling. Espinosa's undergraduate thesis at Instituto Tecnológico Autónomo de México (ITAM) won the Premio de Investigación Ex-ITAM in 2007. She graduated with a Mención Honorífica from ITAM, received a Goldman Sachs Global Leaders Award, and at Harvard won a Derek C. Bok Award for Excellence in Graduate Student Teaching of Undergraduates in 2012.

This poster is part of the EvenQuads project, which combines innovative mathematical card games with learning about amazing women mathematicians. The project celebrates the 50th anniversary of the Association for Women in Mathematics.

If you want to learn more about EvenQuads, scan the QR code below.

EVENQUADS